BERGER WORKED.

Kaplemeister Henry Berger surprised Hilo by returning here on Sunday morning and going to the hospital where he has been attended by Dr. Fred Irwin of Oahu. The veteran band master was suffering from inflammation of the bladder which, while painful, is not dangerous, and he was up on Tuesday and determined to take the Kinau home tomorrow, according to his original intention.

Captain Berger's time in the hospital was not wasted, he never wastes time, for he set to work on the composition of a Hilo march which he promised Bandmaster Carvalho, Hawaii Herald.

A Tennessee poet, with lyre in tune now chants an ode to our own stewed prune, the fruit of him who, short of cash, must live on it and—corned beef hash.—New York Herald.

TRIBUTE TO M'KINLEY

The following were the closing words of Roosevelt's address at the dedication of the McKinley Mausoleum:

"Wrongdoing is confined to no class. Good and evil are to be found among both rich and poor, and in drawing the line among our fellows we must draw it on conduct and not on worldly possessions. In the abstract most of us will admit this. In the concrete we can act upon such doctrine only if we really have knowledge of and sympathy with one another.

"If both the wage-worker and the capitalist are able to enter into the other's life, to meet him so as to get into genuine sympathy with him, most of the misunderstanding between them will disappear and its place will be taken by a judgment broader, juster, more kindly and more generous; for each will find in the other the same essential human attributes that exist in himself. It was President McKinley's peculiar glory that in actual practice he realized this as it is given to but few men to realize it; that his broad and deep sympathies made him feel a genuine sense of oneness with all his fellow-Americans, whatever their stations or work in life, so that to his soul they were all joined with him in a great brotherly democracy of the spirit. It is not given to many of us in our lives actually to realize this attitude to the extent that he did; but we can at least have it before us as the goal of our endeavor, and by so doing we shall pay honor better than in any other way to the memory of the dead president whose services in life we this day commemorate."

STRAUS APPROVES CONGRATULATIONS TO MOTHER RICE

Governor Frear has received a letter from Secretary Straus to the effect that his department has approved the changes in the location of the rear-range light for Honolulu harbor, and that he has called for specifications for the work under the new plans. It is presumed that work will be commenced within a short time after Capt. Otwell sends these on to Washington.

THE YACHT PLANS.

Henry E. Cooper, Commodore of the Hawaii Yacht Club, sent a cable to Crowsfield the yacht designer on Saturday to find out the reason for the delay in the plans arriving for the new Hawaii defender. So far no reply has been received but Mr. Cooper stated this afternoon that they might be on the Siberia. Work will be started at once on the yacht as soon as the plans arrive, as there is not too much time before the time allowed for the completion of the yacht.

ST. KATHERINE HELD.

Bark St. Katherine is quarantined at Hilo because she failed to fumigate before leaving San Francisco. It she cannot conveniently get smoked at the Hawaii port she will be brought here.

MARRIED.

PATON-BRADLEY—In Honolulu, October 11, Michael J. Paton and Helen Agnes Bradley, by the Rev. Father Ulrich.

SPORTS NOTES.

A match play handicap foursome will be played next Sunday at the links of the Honolulu Golf Club at Moanalua. This will be the last regular tournament this year at the famous course at Moanalua, but golf will still be played all the rest of the year by the members.

G. W. Weight and E. F. Patten of Hilo arrived by the Kinau. They are members of the Federal grand jury. Judge Robinson today denied the motion of the plaintiff in the case of W. J. Lowrie vs. H. P. Baldwin, et al. in the $400,000 suit, to strike out the affidavit of W. R. Castle, and gave the plaintiff until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to file a counter affidavit. Tomorrow the motion of the defense to stay further proceedings will be argued and unless it is sustained the motion to allow the examination of certain agreements in possession of the defendants will be taken up.

CONGRATULATIONS TO MOTHER RICE

NINETY-SECOND BIRTHDAY IS REMEMBERED BY RELATIVES AND FRIENDS.

The Garden Island of October 12 says:

Mother Rice, as she is affectionately called by a large circle of friends and relatives, celebrated her ninety-second birthday yesterday and of course was the recipient of congratulations from all who could reach her. Her many descendants on Kauai were among the first to call and the stream kept up the better part of the day. The Hawaiian women in whom Mother Rice always has evinced particular interest had a deputation at her door early in the day and paid homage to the venerable lady by greeting her with some of the melodies that she herself used to teach them during her active days. Mother Rice who is now enjoying a remarkably good health took great pleasure in the evident respect paid her by all classes and chattered pleasantly with all her visitors.

THE CONTEST OVER LOWRIE'S BIG SUIT

ATTORNEYS STILL FIGHTING OVER MOTIONS TO STRIKE OUT RECORDS.

The case of W. J. Lowrie vs. H. P. Baldwin et al for damages amounting to about $400,000 was again up in Judge Robinson's court this morning. On Saturday the same case was argued on motion to allow the plaintiff to examine and copy certain agreements in regard to stock in the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company, violation of which it is claimed the case is based on. Today the arguments are on motion of plaintiff to strike out the answer of W. R. Castle to the bill of complaint. The case is exciting considerable interest in court circles and will evidently be unsettled for a long time.

RUBBER LANDS AT NAHIKU A SURPRISE

PIONEERS IN NEW INDUSTRY MAKING GOOD PROGRESS ON ISLAND OF MAUI—STOCKHOLDERS WHO ARE ENTHUSIASTIC IN THEIR LOYALTY TO THE CAUSE—450,000 TREES IN VARIOUS STAGES OF GROWTH AND MORE PLANTING TO COME

By FRANK L. HOGGS.

People in Honolulu have no idea of the progress made in the rubber industry. From time to time attention has been called to rubber through the formation of companies, and, in the meantime, the work of clearing land and planting has been going on without interruption. The Nahiku district on Maui is being covered with young trees. In all 450,000 trees are growing, covering about 1000 acres of ground. Nahiku furnishes a good climate for the cultivation of rubber; humidity, ample rain and good soil all favor rapid growth of trees.

Many Honolulu business men are interested in the industry; they are very hopeful and even enthusiastic; but their enthusiasm is as nothing compared to the folks on Maui. The Maui stockholders feel confident that rubber is one of the coming industries of Hawaii. These pioneers are backing their judgment with their money; they are composed of the "plain people"; among them you will find doctors, lawyers, clerks, employees of various plantations, but no "sugar barons" or "sugar dukes." And yet the men who are fathering this new industry are not hostile to sugar; they do not intend to steal labor from the plantations, but with their money intend to co-operate with the planters and pay their share of any expense attached to securing labor; when the trees reach the "tapping" stage many hands will be needed and these honest and long-headed pioneers will secure the necessary help without crippling plantations.

There is room in this country for two important industries or for two dozen if Hawaii could develop that many. Sugar takes up but a fraction of land and this fact is impressed on the man who travels about the islands. In the Nahiku district there is a small empire of undeveloped land; the stretch of country is wide and to the layman it seems that most anything will grow in that beautiful belt. Much of the land is owned or controlled by the Nahiku Sugar Company; this land was formerly used for cane, but since the plantation decided to retire from the sugar business, the fields have been idle, and now are covered with weeds and other growth.

The Nahiku plantation has planted many thousands of rubber trees and the people on Maui believe that the entire plantation will be planted in due time. There are three principal rubber companies—The Nahiku, The Hawaiian-American and The Koolau; then there are many independent planters, including W. G. Scott, who is developing quite an estate. Planting is not confined to Nahiku alone—the people of Hana believe in the industry and every man who has a few acres of ground has planted rubber. When the trees have developed sufficiently to tap, the people interested in the business stand a splendid chance to make a lot of money. The best grade of rubber brings $1.40 a pound; people who have studied the question say that rubber at 50c a pound will for Nahiku be a better business proposition than a producing gold mine.

A man cannot fail to be impressed with the attitude of the stockholders and the men directing the rubber industry; they have the greatest faith in the final success of the enterprise. They have no "gold bricks" to hand to the public; have no immediate intention of forming companies; have no stock in existing companies for sale. They have put their money in the business, believing that they will get big returns, and, "we intend to stay with it," they say. As an example of faith: A young man, a resident of Wailuku, started his rubber investment with one share; his income is a modest one, but as he saves enough, he secures additional shares and now is the proud owner of 12 shares in one of the companies. This same spirit is over Maui and extends to Honolulu, where much stock is held. And judging from the appearance of the fields this loyalty appears to be justified.

From the seashore at Nahiku the fields of the American-Hawaiian Company commence; as the traveler rides along the mountain road the land on both sides is covered with the Caca trees and the sight is a pleasant one. Where waving cane once held possession now appear many thousands of rubber trees, in all stages of development rearing their tops straight in the air. With an interval here and there, the trees extend to the boundary of the Hana Plantation. As previously stated, 450,000 trees are growing; after riding through the fields the observer would be willing to bet that there are more than four million. All this planting has been accomplished within two years, under the direction of competent men—for each plantation possesses an active and intelligent manager. The work is a mighty one and the men who have given their time and money in an effort to develop a new industry, deserve well of the people of Hawaii—they deserve consideration, encouragement and every help from all those who believe in enterprise and progress in this Territory.

The people interested in the rubber industry have formed an association for "the good of the cause." It was decided to hold the first general meeting at Manager Anderson's home on the land of the Nahiku Rubber Company. Every stockholder in the various companies was invited to join in an excursion to the rubber lands—to see the progress made and learn just where their money has been spent. Fred Waterhouse managed the trip; he chartered the steamer Likiekie, and, with about 20 Honolulu people on board, including Governor Frear, the boat sailed at noon last Friday for Lahaina; after a pleasant trip this port was reached and several passengers were taken on board. Then a quick trip to Kahului followed and a large contingent of Central Maui folks joined the party. The steamer proceeded and Nahiku landing was reached at daylight. The party, numbering 60 people, reached shore safely and walked to the house of Manager Austin's, where a bountiful breakfast, with true country hospitality, was served. At this point, Q. Q. Bradford, farm foreman for the Federal Experiment Station, tapped a nine-year-old rubber tree, planted by Hugh Howell, then a Government surveyor, planting the Nahiku lands. This experiment was interesting and was a good start for a day filled with surprises. While all this was going on the Hawaiian residents were gathering their saddle horses to assist in transporting the visitors; then Hana was called on for horses and rigs and finally everybody was provided for. The advent of 60 strangers was a great event at Nahiku; the kindly Hawaiians were very pleasant in greeting the "haoles." Governor Frear and other members of the party were crowned with leis—a pretty offering from people who were glad to have a visit from so many strangers.

The party then proceeded up the winding mountain road on the way to the meeting place at the Nahiku Rubber Co.; a Nahiku "shower" came down and everybody was soaked but their enthusiasm was not dampened a bit. On the journey many picturesque scenes covered with dense tropical foliage are seen; waterfalls are frequently met with, and, altogether Nahiku presents a beautiful appearance. As one man observed: "This is a genuine tropical company," and so it is.

At Manager Anderson's home at Nahiku a luau was provided for the hungry travelers, and, later the meeting of the Association was held. After a number of new members were secured on the spot, routine business, including the adoption of by-laws, was transacted. Then addresses were in order and a hopeful, encouraging talk was given by Jared Smith, the special agent in charge of the Federal Experiment Station; other addresses were made by Governor Frear, B. F. Dillingham, Manager Austin, of the American-Hawaiian Company. Interesting papers were furnished by Dr. E. C. Waterhouse and Jacob Kotinsky. The entire meeting was interesting and will probably be the forerunner of many similar gatherings to come.

After a vote of thanks for hospitality shown during the day, the party started for Hana, where the Likiekie was in readiness to start. It was Saturday afternoon at Hana; the plantation folks were at liberty and the entire population appeared to be at or near the wharf. All were dressed in their best, and, it is safe to say, like Nahiku, that Hana residents have rarely seen so many strangers in their primitive town.

ROOSEVELT'S WATERLOO

CAN'T PLAY TENNIS WITH WINSTON-INGHAM, BISHOP OF LONDON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25.—Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, Bishop of London, put it all over Theodore Roosevelt at tennis on the White House court yesterday afternoon. Jimmie Garfield and Alfred Cooley also played. Elias Meffe, editor of the Churchman, suffered his herchief on the side lines.

Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram is fifty, but plays tennis like a two-year-old. He is slender, too, which seems to help some, and a government mathematician who watched the contest from the third floor of the Navy Department estimated that, as compared to the President, his generation of heat energy was as 000000 to 618,001. When the three brief sets had been finished the bishop's white flannels, which replaced for the moment that extraordinary uniform of the English church, weren't even damp. He was in a class by himself in this respect.

Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram seemed to enjoy the sets very much and didn't appear to be pestered in his mind concerning the possibility of placing a hot one in the geographical center of the executive countenance. Mr. Garfield didn't share this unconcern to any noticeable degree, and even the usually irrepressible Mr. Cooley appeared thoughtful.

MANY LISTEN TO PRESIDENT SMITH

LARGE CONGREGATION GREETED THE DISTINGUISHED RELIGIOUS LEADER AT DEDICATION.

The new church of the Church of Jesus Christ or Latter Day Saints on King street was dedicated yesterday morning with impressive ceremonies at 11 o'clock by President Smith of the National Church, assisted by Elders Sheehy and Waller. The church was entirely full of people and many were on the steps trying to get in.

On the platform were President Smith, and Elders Sheehy and Waller. The formal acceptance was "abolished" by Elder Waller handing the key of the church to President Smith, who in turn gave it back to the Elder for the use of the congregation.

President Smith spoke of the purposes of the church, which were to present to the people the truth which Christ gave to his disciples and to those whom he sent out to preach the gospel. The dedicatory prayer was said by Elder Sheehy after President Smith's sermon.

After the service the members of the church came up and shook hands with the visiting dignitaries of the church. A large number of people were present last night to hear Elder Sheehy who spoke at length on the ideas and beliefs of the church, and on the subject of Christian life today. Services will be held every night this week with the exception of Wednesday and Saturday night, and at each service President Smith and Elder Sheehy will speak.

FINNEGAN HERE TO PLAY FOR ELKS

THE CAST OF CHARACTERS FOR THE LOCAL LODGE'S ANNUAL SHOW.

The three act comedy "Finnegan the Millionaire," which will be given by the local lodge of Elks on the 21st of October and November 2nd, at the Opera House, will be one of the funniest plays that has ever been seen here. The play is a typical Irish-American play of present day life in New York. The story of Finnegan's rise to wealth is true, as the story and plot of the play have been taken from the real life of an Irishman in New York. The events leading up to his becoming a millionaire are portrayed during the play.

Mr. Hooley, who is training the cast, is an actor who has played in Irish plays for many years, and is to take the part of Finnegan in the play. The cast will be composed of the following local talent: Mrs. McCallan and the Misses McClain and Bell; Messrs. Pinckman, Bergstrom, Prof. Arnold, Reinecke Hooley and the dancing master.

Between the acts the Misses Center will give exhibitions of Irish songs and dances. This same play has been given for several years in the East, and has made a great hit wherever it has been presented.

Among the passengers on the Alameda, which arrived here Saturday, was Lieut. George W. David, one of the officers of the revenue cutter Manning.

GRAND JURY TAKES UP STANDARD OIL

first place?

After he found him crooked as regards the Standard, as he says he did, why did he continue to employ him?

How much money did the Standard Oil Company spend while the Legislature was in session in "entertaining?"

Who had the handling of this entertainment money?

How much connection Mayer and also Hart had with this "entertainment" fund.

It was along these lines that the Jury was working this morning. It is very possible that some of the members of the last Legislature will be summoned to tell what, if anything, they know of Standard Oil dinner given at the Hawaiian Hotel while the body was in session, as well as other persons who may be supposed to know about these things.

WILL PRACTICE LAW.

In the Supreme Court this morning Alexander D. Larnach was admitted to practice law in the Courts of the Territory, and took the regular oath of office. Mr. Larnach is very well known in Honolulu, but has been absent for the past three years taking a course of law in the law school of the Stanford University, California, where he graduated with honor. When the mosquito campaign was inaugurated some years ago it was he who was placed in charge of the work, and he made a splendid record in that position. His advent into the legal field here will be pleasant news to his many friends.

THIS THE SEASON.

This is the time when a rest is better than medicine and the place to get the rest is where the surroundings are pleasant and agreeable. The appointments at the Halewa Hotel are equal to the best in the Territory and the cuisine what a man needs during either rest or recreation. The bedrooms at this hotel are all mosquito proof so the comfort of the guests is increased. St. Clair Biddood, the manager, will arrange terms with you.
